Pursuing a career in creativity is not for the faint of heart. It's a battle to get ideas noticed, one creative people fight their entire lives. But when an idea is noticed—and applauded—there's no better feeling in the world.

And it all starts with getting the right education.

The Art Institutes system of schools offers focused curricula in a challenging, collaborative environment. Stretched, pushed, and inspired by dedicated instructors—many of whom are or have been working professionals—students are armed with the skills they need to transform a passion into a purpose-driven career.

Deadlines are tight, critiques are tough, and competition is stiff, just like the real business world.

Industry-driven technology and career services help promote success in and beyond the classroom. And financial aid representatives can walk students through financing options*, helping them complete forms, set up an education budget, and even prepare a financial plan.

If you have students with the courage, drive and focus to thrive in a creative industry, encourage them to begin with an education from The Art Institutes. Find out more about our degree programs and locations at create.artinstitutes.edu
